

If everyone reading this gave just $15,
that would fund CWFNC's environmental justice internship program this summer!

Our summer environmental justice internships give young people a chance to challenge the environmental threats facing their communities. Let them lead—with your help!

MEET OUR 2025 SUMMER INTERNS!

Jennifer Torres-Morales

Western Environmental Justice Intern

As a senior majoring in Environment & Sustainability at UNC Greensboro, Jennifer is ecstatic to work with Clean Water For NC this summer. Environmental justice is her passion. She's seen firsthand how fundamental community outreach is for growth. As a first-generation college student, Jennifer is grateful for this opportunity to serve her home state. She looks forward to making lasting changes for future generations.

Jennifer will focus on outreach to Western Piedmont communities targeted for new methane gas pipelines & powerplants.

Forest Pearson

Western Environmental Justice Intern

Is a graduate student at Appalachian State University seeking a Masters in Geography with a concentration in Climate Change. Forest has worked on studies of the movement of coal ash pollution and precipitation intensification during Hurricane Helene. Forest is passionate about helping communities recover from pollution and natural disaster events. He is excited to work with well users in Western North Carolina, to identify ways to recover and prevent damage from disasters like Hurricane Helene

Forest will focus on outreach to well users in Western NC counties impacted by Hurricane Helene, with occasional help organizing against Duke's gas buildout.

Kyra Vincent

Northeastern Environmental Justice Intern

A resident of Gaston, NC, in Northampton County, Kyra has distinguished herself as a scholar, athlete, and community volunteer. She graduated at the top of her Early College High School class and, after earning her Associate of Arts degree at Halifax Community College, she is now enrolled in the Bachelor of Science in Nursing program at UNC-Greensboro.

Kyra will work with mentors from several local nonprofits, including Concerned Citizens of Northampton County. She will focus on developing youth involvement in pressing local EJ issues, from wood pellet manufacturing to the impacts of a major local hog operation

With your support, we can:

- Mentor and learn from our EJ interns, expanding their leadership capacity and sustaining CWFNC's work.
- Amplify outreach to well-users in Western NC still recovering from Hurricane Helene
- Advocate for better recovery & prevention efforts for well contamination from natural disasters and industrial pollution.
- Deepen our connections to communities facing new methane gas pipelines & power plants.

THANK YOU FOR YOUR SUPPORT
